

Position: Hardware Engineer

Location: The Netherlands, Leeuwarden

With the collaboration of EURES Portugal and EURES The Netherlands, Acquaint B.V. is looking for Hardware Engineer.

Do you want to work at one of the most promising start-ups in the north of the Netherlands? For a young, innovative and ambitious company we are looking for a hardware engineer. The company develops innovative inspection techniques with which they make waterpipelines safer and more reliable. You get the chance to develop yourself and get to work on projects that really matter. They offer modern employment conditions according to your situation.

Main tasks:

A work day might look like the following:

- In the morning you might have to take a critical look at a design. Before the digital/analog electronics of the new products are dispatched around the world. Your expertise is used to finalize the product up to a new level so that customers are able to rely on our technology.
- After lunch there is a short meeting with colleagues for a weekly update that takes about half an hour. This makes you up to date about all of the projects. One of the projects needs help and thus you jump on your bike to go to our partners. There you get to work with technology for which the patent hasn't been released yet. This new information inspires you to research further tomorrow. Want to help us reach our mission?
